Thoughts for the Senior Class

Dear Seniors,

You're moving! I also moved in this, your commencement, semester. From one narrow cluttered rabbit warren in the college building to a wider realm with four tall windows overlooking the RISD campus. I can see the former Hospital Trust building across the river, plus the tip-top steeple of the Superman building, aka the Industrial Trust skyscraper. Also, the memorial garden of war monuments dedicated to peace and the arts of living in tranquillity. I can catch glimpses of the swans and ducks in the river that used to smell of foul pollution and now nourishes cormorants and even herons.

As I loaded boxes with papers and books and then unpacked, sorted, and placed these dusty souvenirs on shelves, sills, and table-tops, I thought about our alums—whose projects I, like so many of my colleagues and many other RISD community neighbors, collected, and celebrate: all our offices serve as salons and museum galleries, eccentrically but devotedly and determinedly.

Some of you helped out in my Big Move, especially with my chairs and tables, and that brings me to the subject of furniture. Our new president is and has been a furniture designer, an artist in wood and textile. My own childhood family was deeply involved with household furnishings, with a concentration in upholstery, a sort of globalized craft giving jobs to wanderers, immigrants, people in transition, like you, going from here to...where?

Mike

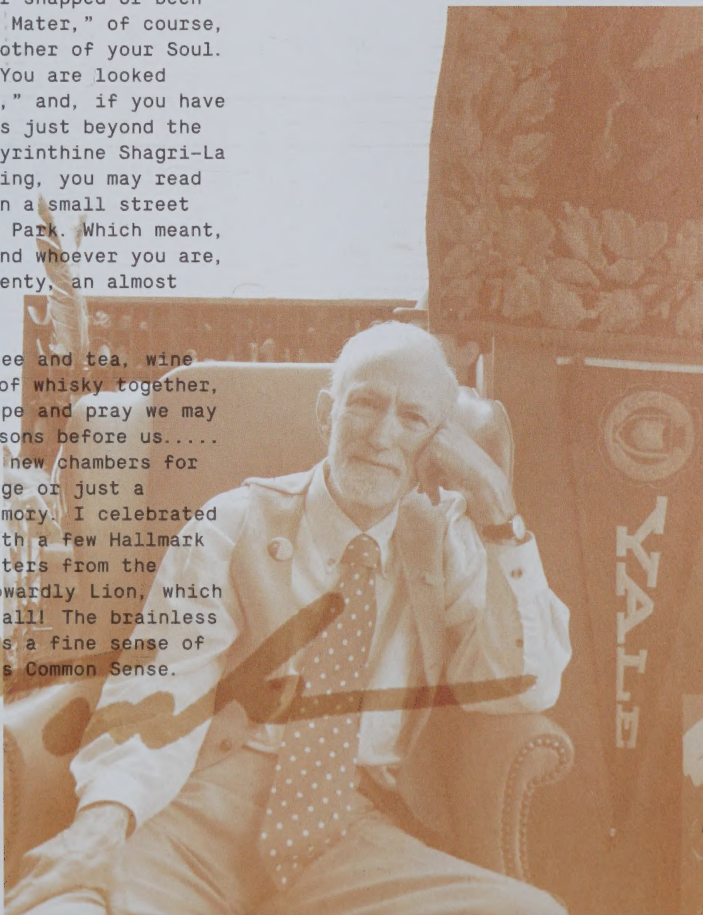

This little world of RISD in this small town of Providence with its campus of river and half-hidden hill sides with secret gardens, or weed patches, tiny but noble houses, and very splendid views in each direction: it will stay with you. The vistas that stretched from your classrooms and studios, of a vast world deeply troubled but also genuinely open to welcome you. With your beautiful, useful, hopeful, enduring, and even eternal dreams, which you will translate into concrete reality. You will rise and fall like a tide, but you will transcend and then, we hope, return to our shores and to the scenes you have sketched or snapped or been imprinted by. "Alma Mater," of course, means, The Second Mother of your Soul. Providence means, "You are looked after, benevolently," and, if you have explored the streets just beyond the borders of this labyrinthine Shaggy-La of poetry and painting, you may read the name "Plenty" on a small street near Roger Williams Park. Which meant, whatever you have and whoever you are, it is a personal plenty, an almost biblical plenty.

We have sipped coffee and tea, wine and perhaps a shot of whisky together, many among you. I hope and pray we may do so again, in seasons before us.... Come back inside my new chambers for a moment, in an image or just a glimpse, a quick memory. I celebrated my own B3ig Move with a few Hallmark dolls of the characters from the Wizard of Oz. The Cowardly Lion, which is not a coward at all! The brainless Scarecrow, which has a fine sense of direction as well as Common Sense.

The Tin Woodsman, who thinks he has no heart, but who rusts from the rust left from his sentimental tears. We all hold our own opposite within ourselves. So, we look outward and inward. Phil Oliveira sent me from his Carr House student life headquarter a Superman action figure for my window view overlooking the Superman Building on Westminster Street--to join our mission to save the world from itself, to heal and help, and to join the alum art community all over the free world.
